

Indiana State Representative Sheila Klinker

Dear Friends:

The 2004 short session of the Indiana General Assembly will reconvene January 8. I will be returning to Indianapolis when we start the hearings of the Ways and Means Committee on January 6 and 7. We will discuss a number of important items, including our continuing efforts to provide Hoosier taxpayers with real property tax relief. We will also address the concerns we heard from rental property and farmland property owners at the Ways and Means Committee hearing in Lafayette.

To that end, we recently completed several days of meetings to address issues caused by the new property tax reassessment. I have detailed our property tax relief efforts in the section to the right of this letter. I expect these discussions to continue over the coming weeks as more needs to be done to help homeowners and farmers across the state.

I appreciate all of your calls, letters and emails over the past few weeks. Your opinions are important to me as we continue the session in January. I hope you will take a few minutes to complete the survey included in this newsletter and return it to me at the Statehouse.

Please contact me if you have any questions or concerns about state government.

Helping Hoosier Families

Property Tax Relief

The Indiana General Assembly has passed a series of reforms that help build on the tax restructuring that took place in 2002. The reforms contained in the package approved by the legislature will provide nearly $500 million in property tax cuts for homes, businesses and farms.

The deadline to file for the homestead credit and other credits and deductions was extended to December 15. That provision will help 95,000 Hoosier homeowners receive state property tax relief. Counties also will be able to offer installment payment plans to help taxpayers with larger bills, and penalties for late payments can be waived. Property taxpayers will have up to 45 days to appeal a bill.

While these provisions will help ease the burden on property taxpayers, I am disappointed we were unable to include additional protections that were approved by the House.

The House reforms would have given homeowners and farmers a larger share of property tax relief and provided additional relief for senior citizens. The House plan would have created a "farmstead" deduction to protect agricultural land owners while helping owners of older homes and historic districts who have been harmed by the reassessment.

While these provisions were changed in the Indiana Senate, House Democrats will pursue these reforms when the legislature returns in January. The bills outlining our proposals have been filed and are ready for consideration on January 6 and 7.

The General Assembly's actions to date have demonstrated a bipartisan understanding that more must be done to help taxpayers, particularly those who own older homes and farms. We must continue to protect their interests throughout the 2004 session.
